Upon one of the latter proposed by Mr. Hunt, for the distribution of the next annual proceeds arising from the sale of the Public Lands among the states, long discussion ensued in which Messrs. Stanberry, Steriger, rest, Sevier, Vance, Martin, Mallory Johnson of Kentucky, Reed, Taylor, Wilds, and manyes took part. Several amendments were engrossed upon the original resolution; but it was finally, on the motion of the last named gentleman, laid upon the table, Mr. Verplanck moved a resolution of considerable interest in relation to American Literature; to inquire into the expediency of reducing the postage on all periodical publications to the level of the postage charged upon newspapers. It was referred to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads. After the consideration of a resolution, which was ultimately negatived, moved by Mr. Hall to refer the subject of the election of President to a Committee, the question of the establishment of an armory on the western waters, was brought forward by Mr. Carson; various amendments were moved upon it; but, previous to the sense of the house being taken upon the subject, an adjournment took place until 12 o'clock on Monday.

SUMMARY.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The French Government and the members of the diplomatic body are said to have received intelligence yesterday, by a courier that arrived at the Austrian embassy, that the Emperor of Russia had consented to grant to Turkey conditions less rigorous than those stipulated in the Treaty of Adrianople, either as it regards the amount of the indemnities, or the periods at which they are to be paid by the Porte.

ENGLAND.—From England there is nothing new whatever of any interest. The King's health continues to be good. The London Morning Chronicle of November 6th states, from unquestionable authority, that it is the intention of the British Cabinet, steadily to steer clear of any thing like direct interference in the affairs of Portugal.

The Courier of the same date, states, that despatches had been sent off to Sir James Kempt, Governor General of the Canadas.

GREECE.—The Journal des Debats has the following:—A serious and important question remains to be decided for Greece. The time is at hand when the monarchical form of its Government will render necessary the choice of a Prince, who will be called to carry on the work of its political regeneration. Three competitors are at this moment on the stage, namely, Prince Paul of Wirtemberg, the Prince of Baden, and Prince Leopold of Saxe Cobourg. The Prince of Baden, after a long stay at Paris, went a few months ago to London, and Prince Leopold has just arrived at Paris. Perhaps these three names will not complete the list of competitors; and hence we shall at present confine ourselves to a few of the objections that present themselves at first sight against two of the aspirants. With respect to the Prince of Saxe Cobourg, it remains to be decided whether the Consort of the daughter of the King of England is not by the mere fact of his marriage excluded from being a candidate for the throne of Greece; whether the pension which he receives from the Parliament does not associate him too closely with the reigning family; and again, whether the Ionian Islands are not too near neighbors to the Morea. Between the family of Wirtemberg and the Imperial House of Russia relations by marriage also exist, but they are more remote from the throne; and the quality of pensioned English subject is evidently a chance unfavourable to the Prince of Saxe Cobourg in a competition with Prince Paul of Wirtemberg. The Prince of Baden is represented to have come to Paris for nothing but to lay before the French Cabinet his differences with the King of Bavaria, but his journey had also another object, and that object is now well known. The Constitutionnel says upon the same subject:—"Greece, which is essentially destined to form a Confederate Government, is to be ruled by a Sovereign Prince. Each of the four Great Powers present their candidate. France proposes for the throne of Leonidas the Prince of Lucea, son of the King of Etruria; in whose veins Spanish blood flows; Great Britain sets up Prince Leopold of Saxe Cobourg; Russia, the son of the ex-King of Sweden. As to the title that the candidate will assume, this is said to be left to the Aulic Chancery of Austria."

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 4.

—A singular occurrence recently took place here, which has excited the public astonishment in a high degree. A Greek named Argiropolo, had been appointed to accompany as Chief Dragoman, the Turkish Embassy about to be sent to St. Petersburg by the Sultan. His Highness had called him into his presence, and placed a considerable sum of money at his disposal, which was the more acceptable as he was in pecuniary difficulties. On a sudden Argiropolo and all his family disappeared, without any one knowing what had become of them. This circumstance has given rise to a multitude of conjectures and rumours, but the most probable is that being advanced in years and harassed with troubles, he has fled to avoid taking upon him functions, for which he had no inclination, but which he could not decline without exciting the Sultan's displeasure. In taking to flight he had nothing to lose at Constantinople."

SPAIN.—November 6 is fixed for the signature of the contract of marriage between the King and the Princess Maria Christina of Naples. After this ceremony the marriage will be published officially, and the Duke de Florida, Minister of Naples, will set out for the frontiers to receive their Sicilian Majesties and their daughter.

A few evenings ago, as M. Stick de Linschaouten, Secretary of the Netherlands' Minister at this Court, was coming out of the Theatre, he was stabbed by a man who had formerly been in his service as cook. His wounds are believed to be extremely dangerous. The Gazette of this day contains an article in which it is stated that the expedition which sailed from the Hamna under Gen. Barrade's consists of only 3,300 men. Gen. San Lorenti embarked a few days since at Cadix for the Havanna, to take the command of the second expedition.

THE PRESIDENT'S MES-SAGE.—So far as we have seen, this document has met with the approbation of our brethren of the type, with one exception.— the New York American. The Norfolk Herald, a warm and consistent opponent of the election of Gen. Jackson, and a most respectable paper, speaks in a very complimentary manner of it. We believe its recommendations, not less than its style, meet the approbation, very generally, of the people.

GREAT INJUSTICE.—The Hon.
David Crockett in a letter to the Editors of the Telegraph and Intelligencer complains that on his way to Washington City he was compelled to pay for a supper and lodging (by a Mr. Erceland,) when he "had neither eaten, drank or slept in his house" out there. In the night of the 19th inst. three shocks of an earthquake were felt at Grenada.

It seems certain that semi-aries of Jesuits are about to be established in all the provinces of Spain.

TRIESTE, Oct. 21.—An English steam vessel just arrived, announces that Count Capo d'Istria was preparing, with the assent of the English and French Ambassadors, to go to the Russian headquarters at Adrianople. He is to disem-bark at Enos, and proceed from thence by land. It is expected that he will remain at the head of the Greek government, and in that capacity take part in the negotiations relative to the affairs of Greece.

ODESSA, Oct. 13.—Twenty-eight vessels had arrived from Constantinople, three of which bore the English flag.
Trade continues very brisk, and every description of produce sustains previous high prices; excepting wheat, which has declined in consequence of late advices from the ports of the Mediterranean, where the demand for the article had somewhat subsided. The English vessels were obtaining the high freights of 41 10s. per ton, with 10 per cent. primage.

GOVERNMENT DEBTORS.—
It is understood that the same humane and liberal spirit which dictated that part of the President's Message, relating to the discharge of honest and impoverished debtors from their dues to the Government, has induced the Treasury Department to decide that writs of Ca Sa shall not be issued against debtors to the United States, except such as are suspected of fraud, and those who, having the ability, do not pay the costs incurred by the Government in the prosecution of their bonds.

BOTHERATION.—Consider-al interest was shown in a trial on Wednesday last, between certain members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Reformers. The contest was about the right of using a church in Springfield township in this county which was formerly occupied by the old Methodist society. The Reformers claimed the right of using and did use it, when an action of trespass was brought against them. After much debate, the Jury retired and remained out all night, when they brought in a verdict for the plaintiffs (the old society), damages one cent. This decision would debar the reformers from the right of using the old church. This union of law and gospel in the court house must be an unpleasant business to tender consciences.

MILITARY SCHOOL.—Capt
Partridge proposes to establish a branch of his Scientific and Military School in Fayetteville, to be commenced some time in March next. He has already established one at Oxford, in Granville county.

HALIFAX.

THURSDAY Dec. 24, 1829.

NEW STATE BANK.—In the Senate, on Friday last, upon the question to strike out the first section of the Bill to establish a new Bank, the votes were, yeas 23, nays 40—the effect of striking out the first section would amount to a rejection of the bill, so that by the a vote vote, it appears there is a large majority in the Senate in favour of establishing a Bank of the State, provided the Bill in its further progress before the committee be so matured as to suit their views. Could we be convinced of the propriety of such a measure at any time, and that its results would tend to relieve the people from their embarrassments, we should say that the present period demanded its establishment. But this relief, if afforded at all in this way, will be but short lived. If the United States Bank and that of other States will not receive its notes at par, they must immediately depreciate, and so far from paying our debts abroad will not satisfy our creditors at home.

The following officers have been re-elected by the Legislature without opposition: William Hill, Secretary of State.
William Roberts, Public Treasurer.
James Grant, Comptroller.

PETER O. PICOT, Esq. has been elected, after several ballotings, Brigadier General of the 13th Brigade.

VIRGINIA.—The Hon. Jas.
Monroe has resigned his seat in the Convention in consequence of indisposition. Mr. P. P.
Barbour was elected President and Gen. Robert B. Taylor of Norfolk, a member, to supply the vacancy. Gen. Taylor declined the appointment.

Halifax.—In our last, we took a discursive view of the advantages, likely to result to this place from the trade down the river, and endeavoured in as comprehensive a manner, as possible, to point out, what we conceived to be some of the duties and the interest of those more immediately concerned.—We will now attempt a further view of this subject and shall, as our limits will permit, from the watch tower of the press, notice this matter from time to time, and point attention to many alterations and additions, which in our humble estimation will contribute to the appearance and improvement of this town. We have the great northern and southern line of mail stages passing through here, and a line has lately been established to Murfreesborough running in connection with the lower route and giving us a direct stage communication with Norfolk, three times a week. In addition to these advantages, boats are continually plying on the river and we are daily expecting the arrival of the steamer North Carolina well fitted for the accommodation of passengers—all these certainly demonstrate that the town of Halifax already is and every day will become more and more a place of importance.—We see gentlemen from all the large cities and from almost every clime on the globe, passing and repassing, to whose observation and criticism we are continually exposed—and it would be well that something should be done to impress them with a favorable opinion of the thriving situation and good police of our town. The public buildings of the county are located here and the citizens are virtually pledged in some degree to take care of them, and we would ask, whether it is not to their interest to place a handsome enclosure around the court House and plant out trees within it —this would not only be an ornament to the town but a great accommodation to all who attend our courts—we believe that by this means a great display of ornament and real comfort may be reached by a trifling expense.

We would further suggest the propriety of repairing the fence or making a new one around the Church Yard. It is a principle of savagery to venerate and respect the dead and the lingering of affection around where sleeps the ashes of their fathers is one great preventive to their immigration.—A respect for the dead has ever been one characteristic of man, in his more civilized capacity, and we would ask, whether the church yard, in this place, corresponds with that view. The town has clearly evinced its respect for religion, by the repairs of the church, but its appendage is in a wretched state of dilapidation. It is to this sacred place, where man may be humbled, by reflection upon his nothingness, we would invite attention—we would plead for it "trumpet tongued"—if it were a dear, holier spot in the town, we are not a ware of it.

FOR THE HALIFAX MINERAL.

MR. FREEMAN.—With that solicitude which characterizes a well wisher to your town, I have anxiously looked and hoped for its advancement; and it has been matter of astonishment with me, that so much apathy and indifference should have existed among a people at once intelligent and ambitious—that they should so long have been regardless of their best interest.
Indeed, Sir, whenever I have taken into view the location of Halifax, surrounded as it is by a rich and populous country, and possessing many natural advantages, I have been irresistibly led to the conclusion, that nothing but a want of energy could prevent its rising into notice and distinction. Time has shown that I was right, and that your little village, once honoured by the councils of the State, and venerable from age, will ere long assume that station to which it is so justly entitled.

But a little while ago, all was gloom and despondency. An ill-fated supineness was visible in every circle, and as if by mutual consent every thing seemed to bend, in silent acquiescence, to the delusion; while the proud Roanoke rolled her waters to the Ocean, murmuring with neglect. How pleasing the contrast! How delightful the prospect! Now, all is animation and life—the cheering hum of business is heard along the streets—industry is the watchword, and all things give evidence of a happy reformation.
Waggons and carts crowd along, literally groaning under the products of the country, while the majestic, but long neglected Roanoke, swarming with life and industry, generously offers her bosom to realize the expectation of the farmer.
These are proud times! Halifax, go on—you are now on the road of successful experiment, and have nothing to fear.
Continue your exertions, and I anticipate the hope when I shall see you, if not the great mart of North Carolina, at least, the proud example of what industry can do.

POETRY.

'Tis the gift of POETRY to hallow every place in which it moves; to breathe round nature, an odour more exquisite than the perfume of the rose, and to shed over it a tint more magical than the blush of morning.

THE FAREWELL.

BY BYRON.

He will return—but now the moment's bring The time of parting with redoubled wing;
The why, the where, what boots it now to tell?
Since all must end in that wild word—farewell?
Lo! 'tis the bugle—Joan shrilly blew—
One kiss—one more!—adieu!
See rose, she sprung, she clung to his embrace, Till his heart heaved beneath her hidden face;
She dared not raise to his that deep blue eye,
Which downcast drooped in tear-less agony.
Hark!—peals the thunder of the signal gun!
It told 'twas sunset!
Again—again—that form he sadly pressed.
When motely clasped, imploringly caress'd
And tottering to his couch, his bride he bore One moment gazed—as if to gaze no more!
Felt—that for him, earth held but her alone, Kiss'd her cold forehead, turn'd, as Conrad gone!
And as he gazed How oft that fearful question will intrude,
'Twas but an instant past, and here he stood!
And now without the portal's porch she rush'd, Saw then at length her tears of freedom gush'd, Bright and hot, unknown to her they fell,
But still her lips refused to seal—farewell!

THE MAIDENS CHOICE.

Gentle in personage,
Conduct and equipage,
Noble by heritage,
Generous and free.

Brave, not romantic,
Learn'd, not pedantic—Prolic, not frantic—
This must he be.

Honor maintaining,
Meanness disdaining,
Still entertaining,
Engaging and new.

Neat, but not finical,
Sage, but not cynical,
Never tyrannical,
And ever true.

From the Newbern Spectator.

HON. THOMAS BLOUNT.

An eminent biographer remarks, that gratitude alone, perpetuates the memory of the illustrious dead. If oblivious silence were permitted to reign over their heroic achievements, both in politics and arms, succeeding posterity would lose the benefit of their wisdom and experience, and the improvement of the world, instead of being progressive would remain fixed and unalterable. The task of the biographer is therefore "twice blessed." A grateful kindred, hold in dear remembrance the gratitude of the duty, and an admiring posterity, give the homage of their gratitude.
But for some such feeling, the subject of this notice would have been gathered to his fathers, unnoticed and unknown. To rescue from oblivion, the name of one who stood so high and honoured among us, and to hold him up to posterity as a bright example of talent and worth, is the object of the following sketch:

THOMAS BLOUNT, took an early and active part in favour of the rights and liberties of his country, at an early age.
Whilst a boy, at the age of sixteen, he entered into his country's service a volunteer in the Revolutionary army, in which he served in various capacities until the conclusion of a peace.

We are not acquainted with the rank he held at the close of the war, but such was the confidence of the state in his patriotism and military talent, that he was raised by successive promotion, to the highest rank in the militia of that state, in which capacity he commanded universal approbation. General Blount had been a member of congress for many years, with occasional intervals. As a politician, whilst he was justly considered the inflexible and ardent friend to his country, he never departed from that gentlemanly deportment which characterised the man.
He was an honourable and worthy man, and in him North Carolina lost one of her most useful and respected citizens.
Intrepid as a soldier, firm and consistent as a politician, he united the qualities of a statesman and warrior, with those of the patriot and scholar. He died at the city of Washington, on the 8th February, 1812, in the 53d year of his age, whilst attending his duties in congress, as a representative from the state of North Carolina. His remains were interred in the public burial ground, on the 10th February, with military honours. His funeral was attended by the military, and members of both houses of congress; and the solemnity and length of the procession which accompanied it to the silent tomb, afforded ample testimony to the general sensibility for the loss.

A FRAGMENT.

To enter this world without a welcome; to leave it without an adieu—to suffer and be unable to communicate your suffering—to stand a sad and silent monument amid the joys of others, which you cannot understand nor conceive of—to be shut out of life—to carry within your bosom the burial seeds of happiness which are never to grow, of intellect which is never to burst forth, of usefulness which is never to germinate, to find even your pre-ence afflic-tive, and not known whether you excite compassion or horror; a whole existence without one cheering sound; without one welcome accent, without one exhilarating thought; without one recollection of the past, without one hope of the future.
O! what a cloud of wretchedness covers, surrounds and overwhelms such a deplorable victim of sorrow.

Now to throw over such a bleighted being the sweet rays of intelligence, to open the intellect, and let it gush forth in streams of light and joy—to rouse the affections that they may know and love God, the giver of all things, and merciful in his chastisements; to enlighten the soul that it may see its origin, and destiny; to cause the lips to smile, though they cannot speak; the eye to glisten with other emotions, than those of sorrow, and the mind to understand, although it cannot hear. O! what a beautiful suppliment to the benevolence of Heaven!—W. Crafts.

THE MECHANICAL AGE.

A writer in the Edinburgh Review says, "Were we required to characterise this age of ours by any single epithet, we would be tempted to call it, not an heroic, devotional, philosophical or moral age, but, above all others, the mechanical age. It is the age of machinery, in every outward and inward sense of that word; the age which, with its whole undivided might, forwards, teaches, and practises the great art of adapting means to ends.
Nothing is now done directly or by hand, all is by rule and calculated contrivance. For the simplest operation, some helps and accompaniments, some cunning abbreviating process is in readiness. Our old modes of exertion are all discredited, and thrown aside. On every hand, the living artizen is driven from his workshop, to make room for a spectator, inanimate one. The shuttle drops from the fingers of the weaver, and falls into iron fingers that fly it faster.— The sailor furls his sail, and lays down his oar, and bids a strong, unwearied servant, on vapor wings, bear him through the waters. Men have crossed oceans by steam; the Birmingham fire-king has visited the fabulous east; and the genius of the cape, were there any Ca-moens now to sing it, has again been alarmed, and with far stranger thunder than Gama's. There is no end to machinery. Even the horse is stripped of his harness, and finds a fleet fire horse, yoked in his stead. Nay, we have an artist that hatches chickens by steam; the very brood hen is to be superseded! For all earthly, and for some unearthly purposes, we have machines for mechanic furtherances; for mincing our cabbages; for casting us into magnetic sleep. We remove mountains, and make seas our smooth highway; nothing can resist. We war with rude nature and, by our resistless engines, come off always victorious, and loaded with spoils."

"The child is born," said Oliver Evans, more than forty years ago, "who will travel from Philadelphia to Boston in one day."

"I AM ENGAGED."

"The American Indians are not more remarkable for their severe conjugal fidelity than the girls are for their constancy to their engagements. At parties I have often had young ladies pointed out to me of eighteen or nineteen, who had been engaged, and of whose future husbands, one was in Europe pursuing his studies, another in China, attending his commercial business, and a third dangerously employed in the whale fishery, in the most distant seas. Young girls thus engaged, hold the middle place in society between their still disengaged companions and the married ladies. They have already lost some of the thoughtless gaiety of the former, and assumed a slight tinge of the other. The numerous aspirants designated here by the name of beaux, which at first surrounded them, and were received until a choice was made, still besow upon them delicate attentions, but by no means so particular as formerly, and should one of them, either from ignorance or obstinate hopes, persist in offering his heart and hand, the answer "I am engaged," given with a sweet frankness and an indulgent smile, soon de-troys all his illusions, without wounding his pride. Engagements of this sort preceding marriage are very common, not only in New York, but throughout the United States, and it is exceedingly rare that they are not fulfilled with religious fidelity. Public opinion is very severe on this point, and does not spare either of the two parties which may dispose of themselves without the consent of the other."

Lavasseur's Journal.

Washington.—After the surrender of York Town, while the continental troops were preparing to receive the British, who were to march forth from the garrison, and deliver up their arms, the commander in chief was heard to say, addressing himself to the division of the army to which he was attached, "My brave fellows, let no sensation of satisfaction for the triumphs you have gained, induce you to insult our fallen enemy; let no clamorous hur-raing, increase their mortification. It is sufficient satisfaction to us that we witness their humiliation. Posterity will huzza for us!"

RELIGION—I envy no quality of the mind or intellect in others; not genius, power, wit or fancy; but, could I choose what would be most delightful, and I believe most useful to me, I should prefer a firm religious belief to every other blessing; for it makes life a discipline of goodness—creates new hopes when all earthly hopes vanish and throws over the decay, the destruction of existence, the most gorgeous of all lights; awakens life even in death, and from corruption and decay calls up beauty and divinity; makes an instrument of fortune and of shame the ladder of ascent to paradise and far above all combination of earthly hopes, calls up the most delightful visions of palms and amaranths, the gardens of the blest, the security of everlasting joys where the sceptic views only gloomy decay, annihilation and despair!

The first printing press in this colony was brought by James Davis from Virginia and set up in Newbern in the year 1774. Even the laws, before this, existed only in manuscript.

We have in our possession, printed by this same Davis, "The office and authority of a Justice of the Peace, and also the duty of sheriffs, &c. &c. collected from the Common and Statute Laws of England and the Acts of Assembly of this province. By J. Davis, Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Craven. printed at Newbern, by James Davis.
M. DCC. LXXIV." (1774.)
This is probably the first book that was printed in North-Carolina.

SHIPWRECK.—A schooner supposed to be the Fanny, Capt. Ashbee, from Baltimore this place, was seen off Cape Hatteras a few days ago, bottom upwards. The Fanny left Baltimore on the 24th inst. and was no doubt in the late blow; as she is out of time and nothing having been heard from the crew, we fear they are all lost.
